US says border arrests down as judge reinstates block on Trump's asylum ban

Monday's ruling is another setback for the administration.

A U.S. immigration official on Monday credited Mexico and Central American countries with helping to reduce border detentions 56 percent this year, then lashed out at a federal judge for ruling against the Trump administration's strict anti-asylum policy.

With President Donald Trump's anti-immigration policy shaping up as an issue in his 2020 re-election campaign, Mark Morgan, the acting commissioner of U.S. Customs and Border Protection, announced that 64,000 people were detained or turned back at the southwest border in August. That is down 22 percent from July and 56 percent from a high mark in May.

Even so, the total was the highest for the month of August in more than a decade, as Central American migrants have headed north in record numbers, many of them seeking asylum from impoverished countries with some of the highest murder rates in the world.

A decade ago, migrants were mostly Mexicans, but in recent years they have been overtaken by Central Americans, mostly from the so-called Northern Triangle countries of Guatemala, Honduras and El Salvador.

The Trump administration has been pressuring all of those countries to do more to keep people from reaching the U.S. border, threatening Mexico with tariffs unless it complied.

The United States has persuaded Guatemala to become a so-called safe third country that would accept asylum-seekers, reducing the strain on the United States. Washington is working with Honduras on a similar agreement, but has failed to persuade Mexico to do the same.

Even so, Mexico has agreed to keep Central American asylum-seekers just south of the U.S. border pending their U.S.

"The Northern Triangle countries, specifically, along with the government of Mexico, have really joined the United States as true partners for the first time."

Mark Morgan, acting commissioner of U.S. Customs and Border Protection court appointments and has deployed National Guard officers to halt migrants.

"The Northern Triangle countries, specifically, along with the government of Mexico, have really joined the United States as true partners for the first time," Morgan said.

In June, the United States and Mexico agreed to a 90-day window for

REUTERS

Mexico to reduce migrant flows, a period ended last week.

Mexican Foreign Minister Marcelo Ebrard is due to meet with U.S. officials on Tuesday to discuss Mexico's efforts, saying last week that Mexico does not expect the United States to threaten tariffs at this time.

While praising Mexico and its southern neighbors, Morgan sharply criticized a U.S. judge who earlier on Monday ruled that an injunction against a restrictive Trump rule on asylum-seekers should apply nationwide.

The rule, unveiled on July 15, requires most immigrants who want asylum in the United States to first seek asylum in a third country they had traveled through on their way.

San Francisco-based U.S. District Judge Jon Tigar had previously issued a nationwide injunction blocking the rule, but the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals narrowed it to only border states within its jurisdiction — California and Arizona — and sent the question back to Tigar.

On Monday, Tigar ruled it should apply across the entire border, pending a trial on the underlying legality of the Trump administration rule. REUTERS

US taking in Bahamas storm victims: Acting border chief

2 Acting Commissioner of U.S. Customs and Border Protection Mark Morgan on Monday said the country is expediting its immigration processes and deploying more resources to help storm victims from Bahamas to enter the country quickly. "I've authorized the deployment of an enormous amount of resources to southern Florida to make sure we can receive people coming in from the Bahamas," Morgan told a

White House briefing on immigration. "That doesn't mean we do this with a blind eye. We still have to balance the humanitarian need and assistance of those that need it versus the safety of this country. So we still go through that process but we're expediting this process." Dorian pummeled the Bahamas with 200-mile-per-hour winds last week, causing immense destruction among the Abacos islands. Authorities have said at least 45 people died. REUTERS

Coast Guard frees last crew member from flipped ship

3 Rescue workers on Monday freed the final crew member trapped inside a South Korean cargo vessel that flipped on its side off the coast of Georgia, the U.S. Coast Guard said. Salvage crews gradually drilled an opening in the ship's massive hull on Monday, first to deliver food and water to the survivors, then to extract them, the U.S. Coast Guard said. The last missing crew member emerged from the hole at around 6 p.m. ET. The final crew member had been trapped behind a glass panel in the ship's engineering control room and was the only one of the four who did not get any food and water when rescuers broke through the hull around 35 hours into their ordeal. USCG Captain John Reed declined to comment on what may have caused the cargo ship to tip over as it transported cars. REUTERS

British Airways pilots strike grounds 1,700 London flights

4 Nearly all British Airways (BA) flights were grounded by its first-ever pilots strike on Monday, disrupting the travel plans of thousands of passengers in a dispute over pay. The action by British Airline Pilots Association (BALPA) members forced BA, part of International Airlines Group (IAG), to cancel 1,700 flights to and from London's Heathrow and Gatwick airports during two days of action in its latest high-profile setback. BA faces intense competition on short-haul routes from easyJet, Ryanair and other low-cost airlines and has faced a number of operational hiccups in the last few years. "It's going to punish customers, it's going to punish our brand, it's going to punish the rest of the colleagues," BA Chief Executive Alex Cruz told BBC TV as IAG shares dropped by as much as 3 percent in early trading. REUTERS

Trial begins for 2015 deadly East Village explosion

Con Edison turned off the gas for over a week and restored service after the tapping item was removed. Hrynenko owned another building nearby and had rigged the gas lines and pipes for that building as well, prosecutors allege.

Con Edison had issues with the proposed meter location on the day of the explosion.

After the secret line was shut down during Con Edison's visit, it was allegedly turned back on by Hrynenko's son Michael, who did not close the valves in the basement that had been opened by Con Edison.

Later that day, Hrynenko was alerted to a gas smell by the restaurant management. Her son and Kukic went to investigate and were seen on video leaving the building without calling authorities. Shortly after, the explosion happened.

The gas explosion led to a fire, which killed a Moises Ismael Locon Yac, 27, a busboy at a sushi restaurant, and Nicholas Figueroa, 23, a customer. The fire leveled half the block, destroying four buildings on Second Avenue and East Seventh Street.

Hrynenko's son Michael, 31, managed the building facilities and died in 2017. If he were still alive, he would reportedly also be facing charges. Finally, Andrew Trombetta, a licensed plumber, plead guilty to charges earlier this year.

Two people were killed in the blast, which prosecutors say was caused by an illegal gas line.

Opening statements began Monday in the trial for a 2015 East Village explosion that killed two people and left dozens injured.

Building owner Maria Hrynenko, 59, contractor Dilber Kukic, 44 and unlicensed plumber Athanasios "Jerry" Ioannidis, 63, face a slew of charges including manslaughter, second-degree murder, criminally negligent homicide, assault, and reckless endangerment, CBS reported.

Prosecutors say the March 2015 explosion on Second Avenue was caused by an illegal gas line set up by Hrynenko, Kukic, and Ioannidis. The New York Times reported that the trio tapped into the gas line to "service" tenants while the building was being renovated.

They face up to 15 years in prison if convicted.

Hrynenko hired Kukic to renovate the apartments, and his work was completed in 2014; however, Con Edison did not approve the gas lines.

Residents, who were reportedly paying upwards of $6,000 per month in rent, started to smell gas in the building, and that was when workers found the residence had been using gas lines from the sushi restaurant on the ground floor.

A Times Square Elmo groped a 14-year-old girl: Police

A costumed man dressed as Elmo allegedly grabbed a teenager's bottom over the weekend.

BECCA GLASSER-BAKER
Rebecca.Glasser@metro.us

Saturday evening, right before 7 p.m., a man dressed as Elmo was accused of groping a 14-year-old.

The New York Post reported that the incident occurred on Broadway near West 46th Street.

It is being reported that a group traveling from out of state approached a man dressed up as an Elmo for a photo and during the picture, Elmo allegedly grabbed the girl's behind.

The teen told her guardians, and they spoke to NYPD about the incident.

The man in this Elmo costume has been identified as Innocente Andrade-Pacheco, 54, of Passaic, New Jersey. He was arrested by police and charged with forcible touching and "acting in a manner injurious to a child" according to ABC.

ABC reported that Aldrade-Pacheco denied the allegation via his Legal Aid lawyer and was released without bail. Prosecutors asked for $7,500 bail throughout the arraignment.

Handsy costumed characters have been an issue in Times Square for years, with multiple reports of assault, forcible touching and other aggressive behavior, like demanding "tips."

The incidents have ranged from one Elmo who launched into an anti-Semitic tirade to a Cookie Monster who allegedly shoved a young child, and countless other characters sexually assaulting women.

Even though a 2016 law restricts the "street performers" to specific areas of Times Square, that has yet to stop them, as they are known to draw passers-by from outside their designated zones.

A study by the Times Square Alliance shows that locals and tourists alike loathe the costumed characters, almost as much as the congestion in Times Square.

The study also estimates that somewhere between 120,000 and 160,000 people get touched without consent in Times Square in one yearlong period. The research shows that 47 percent of folks have had an unpleasant interaction with costumed characters.

If you or someone you know has an issue in Times Square, call 212-452-5218 or email Streetwatch@TimesSquareNYC.org.

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

“Don’t Get ANY Surgery Until You See This...”

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It's Best “Treatment Formula” For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going to be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it's complex. In other words, it's not a simple, easy fix.

But I'm sure you already know that. Or you wouldn't be reading this.

That's the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It's amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

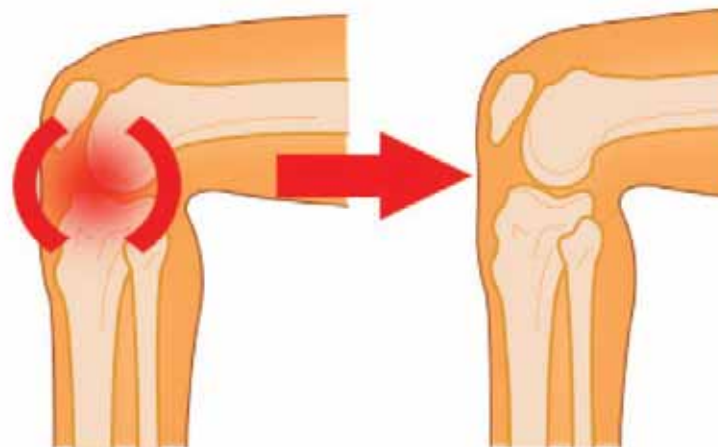

While I can't give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD “Treatment Formula” A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW...

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these “gel injections” without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patient. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here's What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our “Treatment Formula.”

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what's going on and what is your best course of action... step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what's going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I'm out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

Cuomo proposes ban on flavored e-cigarettes

DOH will issue subpoenas to learn more about chemical makeup of products.

New York Gov. Andrew Cuomo proposed legislation on Monday to ban flavored e-cigarettes statewide in an effort to protect young people from the unknown consequences of vaping.

"Common sense says if you don't know what you're smoking, don't smoke it," Cuomo told reporters at a news conference. "And right now, we don't know what you're smoking in a lot of these vaping substances," he said.

The governor's announcement comes after a nationwide surge in mysterious, serious lung illnesses possibly related to vaping, which has also been linked to five deaths in the United States.

U.S. public health officials on Friday announced that they are investigating about 450 cases of the illness across 33 states and one U.S. territory, including 41 cases in the state of New York. The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration said they have not linked the illnesses to any specific e-cigarette product or ingredient.

If the proposed legislation were to become law, New York would become the second state to ban flavored e-cigarettes, following Michigan, which passed a ban on Wednesday.

While e-cigarettes are promoted as a product to help smokers cut down or quit, health officials have expressed concerns that many e-cigarette flavors are designed to get a new generation hooked on nicotine.

Many of the reported illnesses involved vaping products, including cane-cigarette companies, Honey Cut Labs LLC, Floraplex Terpenes and Mass Terpenes LLC. The Department of Health obtained samples from the three companies and found high levels of vita-

Cuomo, sitting beside New York Commissioner of Health Dr. Howard Zucker, also announced that the state's Department of Health was issuing subpoenas to three min E acetate in their products.

Cuomo said stores that sell e-cigarettes will be required to disclose potential health consequences.

"It's quite simple: Don't do it," Cuomo said. "Don't do it because we don't know if it's safe." REUTERS

Back in session, House prepares to formalize Trump impeachment probe

The Democratic-led U.S. House of Representatives Judiciary Committee announced on Monday that it will consider steps this week to formalize its investigation to determine whether to impeach President Donald Trump.

The panel, which hopes to determine whether to recommend Trump's impeachment to the full House by the end of the year, will meet on Thursday at 8 a.m. ET to consider a resolution that would open the door to the more aggressive questioning of witnesses at hearings and allow the White House to respond in writing to evidence and testimony.

The five-page measure also sets procedures for reviewing sensitive material, including grand jury evidence in closed-door sessions.

"The adoption of these additional procedures ...

REUTERS

will help ensure our impeachment hearings are informative to Congress and the public, while providing the president with the ability to respond to evidence presented against him" House Judiciary Committee Chairman Jerrold Nadler said in a statement.

The panel has already rebranded what was originally an oversight probe of Trump's presidency as an impeachment investigation.

But the approach has been criticized by Republicans for avoiding a precedent set during impeachment inquiries against then-President Richard Nixon and then-President Bill Clinton.

In those cases, inquiries were formally authorized by the full House. This time, Democrats have steered clear of a House vote that could prove risky for Democratic freshmen from swing districts where impeachment is unpopular with voters.

Legal experts have said that a more formal investigation could strengthen separate committee lawsuits. REUTERS

48 US states launch broad antitrust investigation of Google; ads in focus

Cost of a free search is the freedom to choose, one AG said.

Attorneys general from 48 U.S. states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico have opened an antitrust probe into big tech companies that focuses on Alphabet's Google, Texas Attorney General Ken Paxton formally announced on Monday.

Paxton leads the probe, he said, which will focus on Google's advertising business. California and Alabama are not part of the investigation.

States on Monday formally requested documents from Google on its advertising business, Paxton said. Several of the attorneys general at the announcement in Washington described the investigation as "preliminary" but said they expected it would expand to cover other issues including data privacy.

Utah Attorney General Sean Reyes said the probe was "for the benefit of the tech ecosystem to help level the playing field."

Arkansas Attorney General Leslie Rutledge called Google's online search engine a "juggernaut," and argued that a free search sometimes came at the cost of the freedom to choose the best products from the best companies.

The tech giants that were once praised as engines of economic growth with massive efficiencies have increasingly come under fire for allegedly misusing their clout in the market and lapses such as privacy breaches.

U.S. President Donald Trump has called for close would work constructively with them. It had no further comment on Monday. Its shares were down 0.6 percent in late trading.

Sen. Josh Hawley, who as Missouri attorney general opened a Google probe in 2017, lauded the announcement on Monday as "a very big day for the folks who care about antitrust enforcement."

"I hope that Congress will get serious about acting. And I hope the United States Senate will lead the way there," he said.

Separately, a second group of state attorneys general, led by New York, is focusing on Facebook Inc., it was announced on Friday.

The social media platform, which owns one-time rivals Instagram and WhatsApp and has more than 1.5 billion daily users, has been criticized for allowing misleading posts and so-called "fake news" on its service. Will Castleberry, Facebook's vice president for state and local policy, said last week that the company would cooperate with state attorneys general.

One criticism of Facebook is that it has been slow to clamp down on hate speech. It recently paid a $5 billion settlement for sharing 87 million users' data with the now-defunct British political consulting firm Cambridge Analytica. REUTERS

Google specifically has faced accusations that its web search service, which has become so dominant that it is now a verb, leads consumers to its own products at the cost of competitors. There have also been complaints of potentially anti-competitive behavior in how it runs the advertising side of its business.

Google said in a statement on Friday that it

Demand Soars At NYC Medical Clinic For Promising Back Pain Treatment

Can This Medical Technology Possibly Eliminate Or Greatly Reduce Even The Most Severe Back Pain... Almost Instantly?

The Advanced Medical Treatment Every Back & Neck Pain Sufferer Needs To Know - No Matter How Bad The Pain Is Or How Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NYC Pain MD is a medical clinic with two locations in New York City that has made a name for itself by treating the worst cases of back or neck pain.

Here is what every back and neck pain sufferer who has failed to respond to other treatments and does not want surgery should know about one of the best treatment options available today for severe back and neck pain including when, why and where you should consider this treatment to get maximum results.

If you suffer with back, neck or nerve pain, you have probably already tried many treatments... especially countless pain medications.

Experienced doctors understand that even though pain medications such as anti-inflammatory pain pills are part of the recommended early treatment plan for back pain... they are rarely the answer.

In most cases they have minimal, short term results (if any) and have a laundry list of potential side effects. Some being serious and even life threatening.

Are there any better options?

Thankfully, advancements in science and technology come extremely fast. And now there is very good option to help relieve the pain.

An option that a lot of back and neck pain sufferers may have never heard of before.

Before we get into these treatments, please understand this...

NYC Pain MD is a REAL medical clinic that has treated the worst cases of back pain. Patients travel from all over to be treated at one of their clinics for all sorts of joint and muscle pain because they want the best medical treatments available.

What you are about to discover is a REAL medical treatment. Not some miracle cure you see on infomercials or on the internet.

Know this fact: There is no one treatment that will help every case of back pain.

And we cannot guarantee this treatment will work for you. But this treatment has already helped countless back and neck pain sufferers who had given up hope. I bet many just like you.

What is this treatment? It's called...

Radiofrequency Neurotomy

"Radiofrequency Neurotomy" is often referred to as RF for short.

RF is a procedure that is based on the theory that blocking the nerve supply to the painful area may alleviate pain and restore function.

There are many nerves around your spine and one of their jobs is to sense PAIN.

Radiofrequency waves are delivered to these nerves under advanced imaging to "block" the nerves.

Two procedures are performed. First, a test, diagnostic "Block" procedure is done to determine if the procedure is going to decrease pain and improve function.

If this first "test" procedure is successful, the Radio Frequency Neurotomy is scheduled and performed for longer term relief.

What Results Can You Expect?

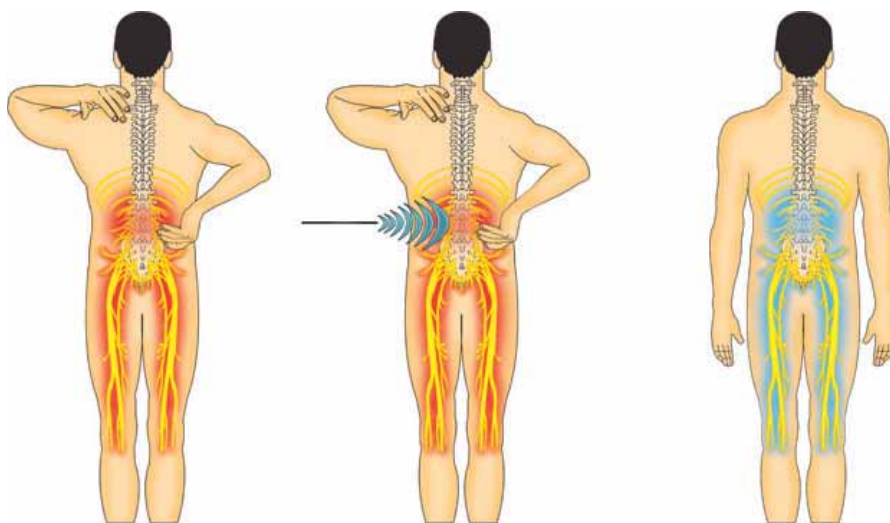

Like all real medical procedures... results vary for individual patients. No good and ethical doctor would guarantee any exact results for any procedure... that's just not how things work and it would be less than honest.

That's being said, it is not uncommon for patients to get complete, if not significant relief of their pain shortly after the treatment.

How Long Do The Results Last?

This procedure "blocks" the nerves pain signals... it does not destroy them. Therefore, the results are safe but not completely permanent. But, many patients get relief for 6 months... 12 months... 18 months for some and some even longer. The great news is - another procedure can be safely performed for more relief if necessary.

Advanced Treatment Uses Radio Frequencies To Relieve Serious Neck & Back Pain

Science rescues back & neck pain sufferers?: Radio Frequency Waves are used to block the nerve supply to the painful area and may alleviate pain and restore function to many.

While we cannot claim this is a complete "permanent cure" but... it can be a god-send for so many who were in constant pain.

Really... what would it be worth it to you could get out of pain for long enough so you could start enjoying your everyday life again?

Would it be worth it to be able to finally get a good nights sleep again?

How about being able to go for a simple walk or just do your basic daily chores without worrying about so much pain?

Is It Safe?

Yes. This procedure has been done countless times and continues to have an excellent safety record. It is minimally invasive and is not surgical.

Who Should Try This Treatment?

RF should be considered after other treatments, such as anti-inflammatory pain medication and physical therapy do not offer good enough results.

RF has also been found effective AFTER back surgery when patient's still feel pain.

The pain after a failed back surgery can be debilitating for some and this procedure may be the only thing that helps give you relief.

What To Do Next If You Are In Pain And The "X" Factor

Here is the "X" factor many do not consider that might be the difference between you getting the best possible treatment or not.

Many experts suggest choosing a medical clinic that offers all these treatments and has the proper, most advanced technology all under one roof without the need for a surgical center or hospital.

Major Savings In Time And Costs Of Care?

NYC Pain MD's method allows you to avoid expensive hospital or out patient surgical center facility fees which often run 3 to 4 times the cost of the procedure itself. And you don't have to go through the huge stress and time consuming process of going all over the city to outside centers. All the NYC Pain MD treatments can be done in out in-office procedure suites saving you stress, time and dollars. NYC Pain MD believes this additional "X" factor is one of the reasons so many back pain sufferers travel from all over to be treated at one of their advanced medical clinics.

Your Invitation

NYC Pain MD offers a limited number of complimentary back pain treatment screenings every month. These screenings are a way for back pain sufferers to get some of their questions answered and see if they are a candidate for one of the cutting-edge treatments offered at NYC Pain MD. If you would like a complimentary screening, just call 877-907-2934 and tell the scheduling expert who answers the phone, "I would like a complimentary back pain screening."

The screenings fill up fast every month. If you do not call in time to get one this month, the expert will schedule you for next month.

This screening is no cost and no obligation.

Many of the treatments offered are covered by many insurance plans and traditional medicare.

Call 877-907-2934 for your free screening and find out if you can get out of pain today.

Suicide kills 1 person every 40 seconds: WHO

Across the world, one person takes their own life every 40 seconds, and more people die by suicide every year than in war, the World Health Organization said on Monday.

Hanging, poisoning and shooting are the most common suicide methods, the WHO said as it urged governments to adopt suicide-prevention plans to help people cope with stress and to reduce access to suicide means.

"Suicide is a global public health issue. All ages, sexes and regions of the world are affected (and) each loss is one too many," the WHO's report said.

Suicide was the second leading cause of death among young people aged between 15 and 29, after road injury, and among teenage girls aged 15 to 19 it was the second-biggest killer after maternal conditions. In teenage boys, suicide ranked third behind road injury and interpersonal violence.

Overall, close to 800,000 people die by suicide every year — more than are killed by malaria or breast cancer, or by war or homicide, the WHO said.

Global rates have fallen in recent years — with a 9.8 percent decrease between 2010 and 2016 — but declines were patchy. In the WHO's Americas region, for example, rates rose by 6 percent in between 2010 and 2016.

The report also found that nearly three times as many men as women die by suicide in wealthy countries, in contrast to low- and middle-income countries, where the rates are more equal.

"Suicides are preventable," said the WHO Director-General Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus. "We call on all countries to incorporate proven suicide prevention strategies into national health and education programs."

The WHO said restricting access to pesticides was one of the most effective ways of reducing suicide numbers swiftly.

Pesticides are commonly used and usually result in death because

New documentary tracks the thrilling comeback of Liam Gallagher

The new film, "As It Was," hits select theaters this Friday,

PAT KING
patrick.king@metro.us

Rock and roll is never short on rags-to-riches stories. But what about those artists who make it to the top of the mountain only to slide back down knowing what they had seen up there? The new documentary, "Liam Gallagher: As It Was" follows the hard-won comeback story of the famous singer of one of the most popular rock bands of the past 30 years, Oasis.

The band broke up unceremoniously in 2009 after his brother (and chief songwriter of the band) Noel Gallagher had decided to leave the band after one of the siblings' most heated blow-ups before a gig outside of Paris. As defiant, in the most entertaining way possible, as the two hard-headed and talented brothers are, the band has remained broken up since that fight despite the pleading of ravenous fans all around the world.

As the documentary shows, the time between then and now has been a difficult road for Liam. As his brother has been releasing music with his longtime project, Noel Gallagher's High Flying Birds, Liams post-Oasis career went through a misstart. He and the rest of the band, sans-Noel, went on to form the short-lived Beady Eye which released two albums that only attracted a fraction of the audience their old band did. When the band announced their breakup after their second album, 2011's "BE," Liam was left alone without a purpose and away from the lime-light that his old band controlled with so much swagger and panache at the height of their powers.

With fly-on-the-wall footage taken by filmmaker Charlie Lightening and with further direction from Gavin Fitzgerald, the film catches the once-cocky and somewhat arrogant singer at a moment of vulnerability. And while this could have been a sad portrayal of an artist on his steady decline, the filmmakers were able to catch lightning in a bottle with footage of the singer recording his breakthrough 2017 album "As You Were" and the wildly successful tour that surrounded its climb in the charts.

Lightening was lucky enough to get in on the ground floor before Liam's incredible comeback. As a documentarian who has worked with Paul McCartney, Jamiroquai and the Brit-pop band Kasabian, Lightening has a way of getting candid with artists and immediately struck up a friendship with Liam ahead of the recording of "As You Were."

"We just became really good friends," says Lightening of the beginnings of this project. "It was second nature for me to be there and film everything. I didn't know at the time that we would go on this journey."

As he filmed more and more, he realized that Liam was on to something special. This became more clear as Liam started performing live with his solo band at festivals throughout Europe.

"It was just the atmosphere and I thought there was something special happening here and I'm privy to be capturing it all," says Lightening. "People really didn't properly listen to me until the album had done as well as it had done and then all of the sudden, film companies started being interested in this film."

This new interest brought on Fitzgerald to help flesh the film out. An Oasis fan from an early age, Fitzgerald had made a name for himself with the Conor McGregor documentary "Notorious," and found a similarity between the two in their persistent fighting spirits.

"I definitely saw weird parallels between him and Conor," Fitzgerald explains. "He kind of gears himself up before going out to sing like a boxer, almost. Like he's going out for a fight and not a concert. That's very Liam. There's not many like him. There's not many who can control those crowds now, or has his stage presence or attitude."

The confidence of the Gallagher brothers could either be an endless source of entertainment or turn off those not fans of their music during their heyday. But given the nature of the film as a long-form character exploration of someone who had a history of antagonistic relationships with the press, what was Fitzgerald's approach to getting candid responses from Gallagher?

"Oasis in the '90s took the media by storm," Fitzgerald says. "Them getting into more and more trouble just created more and more tension. They're masters of staying in the headlines. They learned that by being themselves, they'd find their own unique voice. Liam still has that. He calls everyone else 'vanilla.' I knew he couldn't be like that all the time. There is an element of that where he's at an award show or around paparazzi, he turns it up to 90. It's all within him, but there's also a human side to him. You're just trying to get to that, trying to catch him with his guard down. It was quite difficult to be honest. He's quite aware of the camera. I hope we managed to cut through some of it. I think he see a human side of him, because everyone is human. He's a nice guy and he's a lot more chill now at 40."

You can catch the film "Liam Gallagher: As It Was" in select theaters Sept. 13 and VOD on Oct. 8. Gallagher's new album, "Why Me? Why Not," will be released on Sept. 20.

CIDER SEASON IS FINALLY HERE AND HERE'S WHERE TO TASTE IT

There is no season I love more than autumn. Although I love the weather, my favorite part is probably the tastes of the season. I'm not big into pumpkin spice-flavored things, but I am a massive fan of apple-flavored everything. So, obviously this fall I wanted to chat with you all about cider.

I found myself at Brooklyn Cider House recently, and it opened my eyes to the world of ciders. Prior to my experience at the Brooklyn Cider House, my experience with ciders was tied to non-alcoholic variety. These ciders, however, are produced in the back of the building. Brooklyn Cider House is a triple threat — a bar, restaurant and cidery.

I sat down with Peter Yi, one of the founders of Brooklyn Cider House, to learn all about the autumnal beverage. The first lesson I learned was that Brooklyn Cider focuses on creating natural ciders, produced similarly to how Americans created the drink many moons ago.

The process is long to ferment the ciders and takes around a year in a half to produce. Brooklyn Cider House only produces cider once a year, when it is in season. Although Yi got inspired by Basque-style cider, he produces "New York Cider."

To make natural cider, the ciders at Brooklyn Cider House go through three fermentations. They go through an alcoholic fermentation, a malolactic fermentation and finally, they go through a microbial one. The microbial one makes the drink a little healthier for you than most booze. This process adds some healthy probiotics to drink, so you can enjoy the beverage a little bit more and wake up the next day feeling great.

Although the beverage skews dry, as someone with a sweet palate, I really enjoyed the refreshing flavors. When it comes to pairing cider with food, Yi explained, "It cleanses the palate, so it pairs really great with a wide range of food."

Even though they focus on natural ciders, they also produce the sweet variety most cider drinkers are accustomed to. Natural ciders taste way different than your run-of-the-mill "hard ciders." Yi wants you to give natural ciders a chance.

During your visit, you can learn how to catch cider, which is a super-fun experience. Catching cider is exactly what it sounds like: You learn how to catch cider straight from a barrel. Catching cider gives the experience an educational element, a social element and something fun for you to share on social media. Catching cider is a new skill for me (and one that I won't be adding to my résumé anytime soon). What I do have to tell you is that it's something else trying cider fresh from the barrel.

Additionally, Brooklyn Cider House has a ton of delicious menu items from their prix-fixe menu that complement their cocktails. It's easy to find something to fall in love with this autumn and year-round.

"I feel like I was born to put cider on the map in Brooklyn," Yi told me, and he is doing a great job of it.

To check out the Brooklyn Cider House in person, visit 1100 Flushing Ave. in Brooklyn.

Stand Up for Heroes returns for its 13th year this November

Jon Stewart and Bruce Springsteen headline a night of comedy and music for a noble cause.

PAT KING
patrick.king@metro.us

It was recently announced that the annual Stand Up For Heroes charity event will be returning to the Hulu Theater at Madison Square Garden for a night of comedy and music to raise money and awareness for the Bob Woodruff Foundation that supports the families of wounded, ill or injured veterans. This event will return for its 13th year on Monday, Nov. 4, and will act as the kickoff to the New York Comedy Festival.

"Even after 13 years of Stand Up for Heroes, the event continues to inspire our audience and our nation," said Bob Woodruff, ABC News correspondent and co-founder of the Bob Woodruff Foundation, in a statement. "We can't forget that these brave individuals stand up to serve in our military, and we need to show our support by standing up for them in return."

As with years past, the event will be anchored by two of Jersey's finest with Jon Stewart acting as the night's MC and music from The Boss himself, Bruce Springsteen. The only other two confirmed comedians for the night are fellow "Daily Show"-affiliated comics John Oliver, Hasan Minhaj, John Mulaney, Trevor Noah, Conan O'Brien, Red Hot Chili Peppers, Jerry Seinfeld, Bruce Springsteen, Jon Stewart, Ray Romano and Robin Williams — who had all lent their talents to make a difference.

Eric Church, Stephen Colbert, Jim Gaffigan, Ricky Gervais, Whoopi Goldberg, John Mayer, Seth Meyers, Hasan Minhaj, John Mulaney, Trevor Noah, Conan O'Brien, Red Hot Chili Peppers, Jerry Seinfeld, Bruce Springsteen, Jon Stewart, Ray Romano and Robin Williams — who had all lent their talents to make a difference.

Since its inception, the event has raised over $50 million for the charity and plans to keep this momentum going.

"The New York Comedy Festival is extremely proud to continue to partner with the Bob Woodruff Foundation to present Stand Up for Heroes," said Caroline Hirsch, founder of the New York Comedy Festival and Carolines on Broadway, and Board Member of the Bob Woodruff Foundation, in a statement. "This special event continues to bring joy and laughter to the extraordinary veterans who have risked their lives for our country. It is a humbling feeling to provide support for veterans and their families."

King Crimson is a band with no ego' GAVIN HARRISON

GABRIELA ACOSTA

Drummer of the legendary band chatted with Metro about his way of collaborating with different musical projects.

GABRIELA ACOSTA SILVA, MWN
letters@metro.us

Relaxed, kind and punctual as a good Englishman, Gavin Harris takes his seat in the lobby of a hotel in Guadalajara, Mexico, to chat with Metro about his career and his way of approaching projects such as The Pineapple Thief, Porcupine and, recently, King Crimson. Considered one of the best drummers in the world, Harris has also worked with Iggy Pop and Lisa Stansfield.

When listening to the music of The Pineapple Thief, I hear a pop band with a characteristic fine sound. What is the concept of the band?

It is difficult to categorize. Some people call it commercial, others describe it as a bit more progressive. I don't see it as genres, to tell the truth. It is a very funny band with great people. At our concerts we try to emit a different energy. Many people prefer to listen to us live than our recorded songs.

What is the difference between your three bands?

I try to express myself in the best way in all three. King Crimson is larger than average and there are three drummers, so we have to be very careful with synchronization and choreography. Porcupine Tree and The Pineapple Thief are more traditional, but King Crimson is special, something unique.

You have played with several musicians around the world. How do you select new projects?

Over the years, I have tried to stop playing for money and do it more for the love of art, for music. Now I need to feel a connection with what I am going to do. I don't work for money, not anymore. If I don't feel that connection with music and people, I prefer not to do it. The feeling of having done something great makes me happy.

I guess playing in King Crimson is something like that.

It is an intellectual challenge, the musical level is very high. It is brain rather than a physical work.

People recognize you as one of the best drummers. Do you agree?

I do not think I am. I'm happy that people like what I do, but I don't think it's a healthy state of mind to think that about myself. There are prizes for the best musicians, but I don't ask people to vote for me. It means nothing, because that would be merely selfishness, which is bad for creativity. That is about numbers and I am not interested in numbers. I care more about making art, enjoying it and that people enjoy it. It is the best reward.

Many musicians are very concerned about the legacy they will leave. What would you say about yours?

I don't think so, to tell the truth. Sometimes people send me messages thanking me for a show, and I'm glad that they feel happy. I think it's the best legacy I can leave. But I doubt that in 50 years people will keep talking about me.

What does King Crimson mean in your musical history?

It's a very unique band. When they offered me to join, they liked the idea that I came to the band from a totally different formation. I grew up playing jazz with my father and I didn't grow up listening to progressive rock like everyone else in the band.

Not enough Saquon, no defense plagued Giants in Week 1

TAKEAWAYS

Dak Prescott had a career day against the Giants while Pat Shurmur continues to underutilize Saquon Barkley.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

The New York Giants laid an egg in their first game of the season, albeit an expected one against a far-superior Dallas Cowboys team that has divisional-title aspirations in 2019.

It didn't take long for the Giants' shortcomings to not only be revealed, but exposed, on both sides of the ball.

Yes, the Giants put up 470 yards of total offense against a solid Cowboys defense, and there were still glaring issues that need to be addressed.

Here are two big takeaways from the Week 1 beatdown in Dallas:

1) WHERE'S THE DEFENSE?

The national football media is pretty funny.

Yes, Dak Prescott had a monster game where he picked apart the Giants defense for 405

Saquon Barkley only rushed the ball 11 times during the Giants' Week 1 loss to the Cowboys. GETTY IMAGES passing yards and four touchdowns.

Yes, he became just the second Cowboys since Don Meredith in 1969 to put up a perfect passer rating of 158.3 in a regular-season game.

Yes, that man deserves his money and a big contract.

Yes, Cowboys offensive coordinator Kellen Moore pushed all the right buttons in Big Blue's dismantling at AT&T Stadium.

Let's take a break from the Cowboys love-fest, though. The main reason why Prescott and the 'boys performed as well as they did was because the Giants defense is a hot pile of garbage.

And that might be too nice a term.

Following a season in which he was sacked 56 times, Prescott wasn't touched by the Giants' pass rush. In fact, Prescott was only pressured on three of 32 dropbacks on Sunday (9.4 percent). According to ESPN Stats and Info, that was the lowest pressure rate of his career.

All that time in the pocket allowed him to find the open man with ease — although it wasn't too hard to begin with because the Giants secondary was a complete non-factor.

Rookie Deandre Baker — one of the Giants' first-round draft picks in 2019 — was torched on multiple occasions by Amari Cooper and Michael Gallup.

His counterpart, Antonio Hamilton, got the start on Sunday despite not being featured in a single defensive snap last year.

He was bossed around by Randall Cobb for most of the day, especially on an embarrassing tackle attempt that saw the veteran receiver throw him down on a stiff arm like a sack of potatoes during the second quarter on a 3rd-and-10 in the red zone.

To say they need to rebound is an understatement, or else the Giants will have the worst pass defense in the NFL this season.

2) MISMANAGING SAQUON BARKLEY

Opening day of the season in a divisional game against an opponent that is the overwhelming favorite usually means that an underdog is going to lean heavily on their best player.

For the Giants, that best player — without a doubt — is Saquon Barkley.

The second-year running back is going to be the engine that fuels New York's offense this season, much like he did last year during a sterling rookie campaign.

During their opening drive, head coach Pat Shurmur went to Barkley who proceeded to punch the Cowboys in the mouth. He reeled off a 59-yard run to accentuate a seven-play, 91-yard drive that ended with an Evan Engram touchdown catch.

Barkley had 74 of those yards on that drive (66 rushing, eight receiving), a clear indication that the Cowboys weren't going to be able to stop him.

And then Shurmur decided to just abandon Barkley.

For the rest of the game, Barkley had just nine more rushing attempts and three receptions for a grand total of 15 touches on the evening.

On 11 carries, Barkley put up 120 yards (10.9 yards per rush). That's averaging more than a first down every time Shurmur decided to call a running play.

And yet you only give him the ball 11 times?

I get it, the Giants were playing from behind most of the day, but when it's a one- or two-possession game during the first half, Barkley needs to be the bellcow.

This isn't anything new, though, when it comes to Shurmur and his blatant hesitancy of running the Giants offense through Barkley.

The 22-year-old carried the ball at least 20 times on just four occasions last season. The Giants were 3-1 in those games.

They were 2-10 when Barkley had less than 20.

I'm not saying that's the sole reason why they lost those games, but you have a game-changer in your backfield that isn't getting the ball enough.

CJ Mosley (No. 57) dominated during his debut with the Jets until a groin injury forced him out. GETTY IMAGES

Mosley a must for Jets' success in 2019

The Jets defense nose-dived during Sunday's collapse after losing their new linebacker.

joseph.pantorno@metro.us

So much for the new age of the New York Jets.

With all the pomp and circumstance that came with Week 1 at MetLife Stadium — including new jerseys, a new head coach, a new star running back, and a new defensive — the Jets reverted to their usual ways by blowing a 16-point lead to the Buffalo Bills on Sunday.

That's not the kind of start Adam Gase was looking for at the helm of Gang Green.

While Jets fans are praying that this was just a minor speed bump on their road to future contention — which includes finding a kicker — here are my two big takeaways from Sunday's collapse:

1) DEFENSE RUNS THROUGH CJ

The Jets defense could not have looked any better during the first three quarters against the Bills.

The unit, led by new defensive coordinator Gregg Williams, forced four turnovers on Buffalo's first six possessions.

New free-agent signing and linebacker CJ Mosley was winning over every Jets fan in the process.

He intercepted a Josh Allen pass that went through the hands of veteran receiver Cole Beasley and returned it for the Jets' opening touchdown of the day before recovering a fumble to snuff out a promising Bills drive that meandered down to the Jets' 37-yard-line.

When he wasn't making the big play, he was directing the Jets' defensive front that was dominating for most of the afternoon.

In Buffalo's first nine series, the Jets defense allowed 214 net yards on 45 plays while allowing just three points.

Then disaster struck as Mosley was forced to leave the game early with a groin injury and the wheels fell off.

Without the All-Pro linebacker, the Jets defense couldn't secure a 16-3 lead. In three series, they allowed 170 yards on 19 plays and — most importantly — 14 points.

It's disconcerting to see the Jets defense absolutely fall apart when a single player is forced to the sidelines.

For their sake, Mosley can't miss too much time or else the pressure will be squarely on the Jets' misfiring offense.

2) OFFENSE ALL BARK, NO BITE

Gase's high-flying offense was supposed to be the headliner for the 2019 Jets.

With the new head coach working closely with second-year quarterback Sam Darnold, the addition of All-Pro running back Le'Veon Bell was going to add a new dimension to the attack.

That's not really how things happened, though — at least during Week 1.

Darnold was mediocre at best, completing 28-of-41 passes for 175 yards (4.3 yards per reception) and a touchdown.

The USC product looked shaky against a sneaky-good Bills defense which allowed the second-fewest yards per game in the NFL last season.

He had difficulties hitting his targets downfield, a byproduct of the pressure brought by the Bills defense.

Darnold did, however, show that he and slot receiver Jamison Crowder might be on the verge of a prosperous relationship. The two hooked up 14 times for 99 yards, but it did little to open up things deep for the likes of Robby Anderson or Quincy Enunwa.

In the backfield, Bell had a solid debut for the Jets with 92 total yards and a touchdown. He will be a vital security blanket for Darnold, especially when the deep ball isn't working like it was on Sunday.

Kaare Vedvik (No. 6) missed an extra point and a field goal during the Jets' one-point loss to the Bills. GETTY IMAGES

Jets looking for new kicker after Kaare Vedvik Week 1 dud

Kaare Vedvik's debut for the New York Jets didn't go as planned.

Signed off the street at the beginning of the month, the 25-year-old left four vital points on the table in the Jets' 17-16 loss to the Buffalo Bills on Sunday.

The Norwegian missed an extra point following CJ Mosley's first-quarter pick-six on Josh Allen before shanking a 45-yard field goal attempt just before half-time.

In his defense, the hold from Lachlan Edwards on the missed field goal was not a good one as he struggled to handle a low snap.

Vedvik also did not have an opportunity to practice on the turf at MetLife Stadium after the venue hosted an international soccer friendly between the United States and Mexico.

Regardless, it continues the maddening trend of the Jets coming up lame on their kicking search.

After parting ways with Pro Bowler Jason Myers, who signed with the Seahawks, the Jets got nothing from Chandler Catanzaro and Taylor Bertolet during the preseason.

It was so bad that Catanzaro decided to retire, forcing the Jets to sign Taylor Bertolet, who last kicked for the now-defunct Alliance of American Football.

Bertolet didn't last long as the acquisition of Vedvik prompted his release.

It's safe to say that Vedvik's leash is an extremely short one as the Jets are reportedly looking for an upgrade.

CBS' Jason La Canfora reported that the Jets will hold a tryout for kickers on Tuesday to part ways with Vedvik.

"We just have to get better," Jets head coach Adam Gase said after Sunday's loss. "We have to make extra points. We have to make field goals. We can't be losing points in those areas of the field."

The free-agent market does have several familiar faces that could be brought in as a quick fix.

Sebastian Janikowski, Kai Forbath, and former Jet Mike Nugent hold extensive experience kicking in the NFL, amongst others.

An unlikely name to keep an eye on is U.S. women's soccer star Carli Lloyd. The 37-year-old Olympic and World Cup champion has received multiple offers to kick in the NFL. However, she said that she could pursue such an opportunity in 2020.

Lloyd showed some big-time NFL promise when she nailed a 55-yard field goal during a joint practice with the Philadelphia Eagles and Baltimore Ravens last month.
